DETERMINING THE MEANING AND IMPACT OF WORDS

TEACHER NOTES

6.RL.2.C, Lessons 1–3

UNIT OVERVIEW

These lessons promote active engagement with a literary text as students discover how words and phrases have connotative meaning and that this added meaning contributes to the development of the story. Students will collaborate to find the deeper meaning of the words that describe the characters and setting and create the tone of the text.

Lesson 1: You begin this lesson with a discussion of denotative and connotative meaning. Then students read a story and identify words that have connotative meaning, determining whether the connotation is positive or negative. You guide students in determining the subtle differences between the literal definition of a word and the emotional connotation and its impact on the text.

Lesson 2: In this lesson, students discover that an author describes a character with words and phrases that have positive or negative connotation. Students find words and phrases that describe both the protagonist and the antagonist of the story and then explain how those words create the character’s distinct personality.

Lesson 3: In this lesson, students draw a picture of the setting, based on words and phrases from the text. You help students see the connections between the descriptions of the setting and the events that happen and how this contributes to the overall tone of the story.

Research Findings

Lesson Strategies, Approaches, or Activities

“Effective vocabulary instruction also should establish connections among the instructed items. Any instructional method such as semantic mapping that deals with words in groups based on related meanings or relationship to a common topic should help develop knowledge of relationships, among the words being taught.” (Nagy, 1988, p. 14)	In Lesson 1, students explore how the denotation and connotation of a word are related but have subtle differences in emotion or attitude.
“Students’ knowledge of words is the greatest predictor of their reading comprehension. Without the ability to identify words and their meanings in context, readers will struggle to read with deep comprehension.” (Sisson & Sisson, 2014, p. 44)	In Lesson 2, students examine the connotative meaning of the words that describe the protagonist and the antagonist. This activity trains students to decipher the meanings behind the actions and words of a character to comprehend their role.

“Vocabulary instruction that makes students think about the meaning of a word and demands that they do some meaningful processing of the word will be more effective than instruction that does not.” (Nagy, 1988, p.24)	Throughout the unit, students connect the meaning of words with the context of the text and examine how the author’s word choice enriches the story.
Students need skills in contextual analysis, such as determining the connotation of words, and practice integrating the skills to make meaning of what they are reading. (Sisson & Sisson, 2014)	All lessons provide practice in making meaning out of vocabulary to analyze the story.
“Students need to understand terms that can become both conceptual tools for noticing and thinking and procedural tools for interpretation. If all they know is a definition, they possess only inert pieces of information, not tools for knowing and doing the work in flexible and transferable ways.” (Wilhelm & Smith, 2010, p. 64)	The lessons provide students the tools to make meaning out of vocabulary in a story and to transfer those meanings to a deeper conceptual knowledge of how and why an author uses the specific words in the text.

DISTINGUISHING DENOTATIVE VS. CONNOTATIVE LANGUAGE

INSTRUCTIONAL ACTIVITY

6.RL.2.C, Lesson 1

LEARNING GOAL

In this lesson, students determine the difference between the denotative and connotative meanings of words in a story.

STANDARD

6.RL.2.C Analyze how word choice, including the use of figurative language and/or the repetition of words or word sounds contributes to meaning.

PREPARATION

Before the lesson, select a literary text from a curriculum resource that has been purchased for individual student use, such as a class set of textbooks. Follow all copyright restrictions and guidelines as they pertain to material you select for classroom use.

MATERIALS & HANDOUTS

- ▶ literary text, for individual student use
 - ▶ colored pens or markers
 - ▶ STUDENT HANDOUT: CONNOTATIVE WORDS

IMPLEMENTATION

As a class, turn the learning goal into an I Can statement: “I can describe the difference between the denotative and connotative meanings of the words in a story.”

Invite students to share definitions of denotation and connotation.

Explain that denotation is the literal meaning of a word; for example, a house is a structure where people live. Connotation is the positive or negative feeling associated with a word. Say, “For example, does shack have a positive or negative connotation? What about mansion? Those are both examples of a house, but the words have different connotations. The word house is neutral because it does not have a positive or negative feeling. But if you add the words old and creepy, then the feeling of the text changes.”

Direct students to listen as you read the story and mark the words that have a positive or negative connotation with a positive or negative sign.

Read the story to the class. As you read, think aloud about the vocabulary and talk students through marking connotative words.

Call on students to identify the connotative words in the first paragraph and share whether they have a positive or negative connotation. Write the words on the board in one column. Ask what neutral word goes with each connotative word, and record responses in a second column.

Pass out STUDENT HANDOUT: CONNOTATIVE WORDS. Explain that students will work with a partner to record the connotative words in the rest of the story and determine the neutral words that they refer to. Explain that the words with connotation in the story will not state the denotation (or literal definition) of the word. Students will determine what the literal definition is and write it in the denotation column.

While students work, circulate and ask the Checking for Understanding questions.

CHECKING FOR UNDERSTANDING
Determine if the student can DISTINGUISH THE LITERAL AND NONLITERAL MEANING OF WORDS AND PHRASES IN CONTEXT (ELA-1413) :
▶ What words have positive connotation?	▶ What is the denotation of this word?
▶ What words have negative connotation?

Ask for volunteers to share their examples with the class. Collect the handouts.

For a discussion of the research that supports this instructional model, see the TEACHER NOTES for this lesson set.

DESCRIBING CHARACTERS WITH CONNOTATIVE LANGUAGE

INSTRUCTIONAL ACTIVITY

6.RL.2.C, Lesson 2

LEARNING GOAL

In this lesson, students determine how the connotations of words help describe the characters in a literary text.

STANDARD

6.RL.2.C Analyze how word choice, including the use of figurative language and/or the repetition of words or word sounds contributes to meaning.

MATERIALS & HANDOUTS

- ▶ whiteboard or chart paper
 - ▶ literary text from Lesson 1
 - ▶ STUDENT HANDOUT: CHARACTER DESCRIPTIONS

IMPLEMENTATION

As a class, turn the learning goal into an I Can statement: “I can describe the characters in the story by using the connotative meaning of words from the text.”

Review connotation and denotation. Instruct students to share an example of both terms with their neighbor.

Explain that today students will describe the main characters in the story using the connotative meanings of words in the text.

Call on students to define protagonist. Write responses on the board, and give a definition: A protagonist is the main character in a story.

Invite students to share definitions of antagonist, and write responses on the board. Tell students that an antagonist is a person who opposes the main character. The antagonist can be hostile toward the character, or the antagonist can be a well-meaning person who stands in the main character's way.

Ask students which character word has a more positive connotation, protagonist or antagonist? Which has a negative connotation? Consider pointing out the shared root of the words and that the prefix pro- means "for" and the prefix ant- (or anti-) means "against."

Tell students that they will describe both the protagonist and the antagonist in the story.

As a class, reread the text from the previous lesson.

Next, call on students to give a word from the text that describes the main character or the protagonist. Write each word on the board, and ask students whether it has a positive connotation or a negative one. Mark each word with a positive or negative sign.

Pass out STUDENT HANDOUT: CHARACTER DESCRIPTIONS. Explain that partners will find words that describe each character and will record whether the words have a positive or negative connotation. Then they will write a brief description of the characters based on the full meaning of the description words.

Release students to work. Walk around and collect evidence about student thinking.

DETERMINING TONE

INSTRUCTIONAL ACTIVITY

6.RL.2.C, Lesson 3

LEARNING GOAL

In this lesson, students determine how the word choice in setting details establishes the tone in the story.

STANDARD

6.RL.2.C Analyze how word choice, including the use of figurative language and/or the repetition of words or word sounds contributes to meaning.

MATERIALS & HANDOUTS

- ▶ whiteboard or chart paper
 - ▶ literary text from previous lessons, for individual student use
 - ▶ highlighters (one per student)
 - ▶ STUDENT HANDOUT: SETTING AND TONE

IMPLEMENTATION

As a class, turn the learning goal into an I Can statement: “I can describe the tone of the setting using words and connotations from the text.”

Direct students to turn to a neighbor and define tone. Ask for volunteers to share their answers, and write responses on the board. Review the definition with the class: Tone is the mood of a text. Tone can come from the attitude of a speaker or author and the atmosphere of the setting.

Call on students to define setting in a literary text. Write responses on the board. Review the definition with students: The setting is the time and place a story occurs. Setting can include culture, historical period, time of day, and geography.

Instruct students to talk to a neighbor about why setting is important in a story, and then invite volunteers to share. Explain that the setting details an author includes show a feeling or attitude about that place and moment in time.

Invite students to share the setting of their favorite movie. For example, the movie Frozen takes place in the cold and snow. The main character, Elsa, has the power to turn things to ice. The story would not have developed the same way in a warm or dry setting. Explain that the setting sets the tone of the story and helps develop the characters because the setting affects characters, either positively or negatively.

Select a word or phrase from the text that describes the setting of the story. Think aloud about the connotation and tone of your selection. For example, if the story refers to an abandoned house, ask students whether that is a positive or negative image? What if the character visits an abandoned house at night in the rain? What would be the overall tone of the setting?

Draw a picture based on the description.

Explain that today students will work with a partner to find words, phrases, and images in the text that describe the setting and help create the tone or feeling of the story. For example, in Frozen, it is cold and Elsa feels alone and isolated in the ice castle. The tone is sadness and loneliness because she feels like no one accepts her.

Pass out STUDENT HANDOUT: SETTING AND TONE. Direct students to reread the text and work with a partner to highlight the words that tell about the setting. Then students will draw a picture of the setting, based on the text evidence. Last, they will write a description of the tone. While pairs work, circulate and check understanding.

CHECKING FOR UNDERSTANDING
Determine if the student can ANALYZE THE IMPACT OF WORD CHOICE ON THE MEANING AND TONE OF A TEXT (ELA-833) :
▶ What is the setting of the story?	▶ What words or phrases tell about the setting? ▶ What connotation do the words have?	▶ What is the overall tone of the setting?

Ask for volunteers to share their drawing and description with the class, or complete a gallery walk with all students. Collect handouts.

For a discussion of the research that supports this instructional model, see the TEACHER NOTES for this lesson set.

SETTING AND TONE

STUDENT HANDOUT

Lesson 3

Directions: Draw a picture of the story's setting, based on the words that show the tone. Label the picture with the words from the text. Then answer the question.

What tone does the setting create? (Include the words from the text that create this feeling in your description.)
